

M&CA renovating Edward Heart Hospital's Cardiac Innovations & Structural Heart Center

NAPERVILLE, IL—Edward Heart Hospital is currently undergoing a ground floor renovation that will turn the space into the Cardiac Innovations & Structural Heart Center. As Dr. Mark Goodwin, an interventional cardiologist and the Edward-Elmhurst Health system medical director for the Cardiac Innovations & Structural Heart Center, stated in an article by the Daily Herald, “The innovation center will bring together services typically provided throughout the Heart Hospital to make care more convenient. But it won’t replace the catheterization lab and hybrid operating room where most heart procedures are conducted.” The renovation, scheduled for completion in mid-2018, includes creating a new Waiting Area, Exam Rooms, Phlebotomy, Echo Room, Team Offices and a new Conference/ Board Room. M&CA has worked closely with the design/construction team, including the Owner, Consultants, and Contractor to ensure a seamless renovation process.

Edward-Elmhurst Health is a national leader in cardiac care. It has been recognized for expertise and compassion at all stages of heart disease, from screening and diagnosis to treatment. The Cardiac Innovations & Structural Heart Center located in the Heart Hospital on the Naperville campus allows Chicagoland patients the ability to receive the expertise and surgical innovation expected from prestigious medical centers while remaining close to friends and family. Their heart care team is among the first hospitals in Illinois to perform highly specialized heart procedures. Edward Hospital was named a Top 50 Cardiovascular Hospital (2016) in the nation by Truven Analytics, as well as ranked among the top 5 percent in the nation (2014 & 2015) by Healthgrades for overall cardiac services
